

Salmon Bowl 2019!

February 2, 2019 - Corvallis, OR

The Salmon Bowl is back for its 22nd Year! Salmon Bowl is Oregon's Regional competition for the National Ocean Sciences Bowl (NOSB). This exciting quiz-bowl style event is designed to increase ocean literacy and promote excellence in marine science. It's time to get your high school team ready.

Last year we recruited 14 teams from Oregon and Idaho, bringing together more than 200 students, volunteers, and spectators to the competition. We want YOU to bring your enthusiastic and intelligent high school student team to compete in the 2019 Salmon Bowl at Oregon State University on Saturday, February 2, 2019.

If you are interested in coaching a team this year or would like to receive more information about coaching a team, please contact the Salmon Bowl Coordinators at salmonbowl.nosb@gmail.com with your interest as soon as possible. Please provide your full name, email, and your school/organization name.

Also, let us know if you have budgetary or travel limitations that make your participation in Salmon Bowl challenging. Maybe we can help.

We are also planning on hosting a meeting/conference call for new and veteran coaches to discuss forming a team, training strategies, etc. in mid-October or early November. If any experienced coaches are interested in working with us to organize this meeting, please let us know.

The Oregon Coast Aquarium team, winners of the 2018 Salmon Bowl, moved on to represent our region at the national competition.

Please share this information with other educators in Oregon who may be interested in forming a team.

We hope you consider coaching a team and making Salmon Bowl's 22nd year absolutely unforgettable! More information on coaching a team can be found by visiting the NOSB website: <http://nosb.org/compete/form-a-team/>. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to ask. Thank you for your time and consideration!
